THE REAL TEST

of Herpelde is in Giving it a Thorough Trial.

There is only one test by which to judge of the efficiency of any article and that is by its ability to do that which it is intended to do. Many hair vitamins may look nice and smell nice, but the point is—do they eradicate dandruff and keep the hair falling out? No, they do not, but Herpelde does, because it goes to the root of the evil and kills the germ that attacks the papilla from whence the hair gets its life.

Letters from prominent people everywhere are daily proving that Newbro's Herpelde stands the "test of use." It is a delightful dressing, clear, pure and free from oil or grease. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpelde Co., Detroit, Mich.

The Kidnapped Boy.

As was stated in the Gazette, Antonio Bozzuffi, the 14-year-old boy who was kidnapped in New York last Sunday and held for $20,000 ransom, returned alone to his home yesterday. He had escaped from his captors, he said, by stealing out of a room above a saloon in Fifty-ninth street yesterday while one of his captors, who had been left alone to guard him, turned his back for a moment. The boy says it took him but a second to spring beyond the man's reach and get down stairs to the street, where no attempt was made to pursue him.

He told how he was terrorized into writing a letter to his father, John Bozzuffi, an East Side banker, informing him that $20,000 must be paid, and that if the police were informed his life would be taken. He was induced to enter the saloon by two Italians, who told him they wished him to do some interpreting in English, which they did not speak. Taken to the upstairs room, he says he was at first bound and a handkerchief was forced into his mouth. Three men wearing black masks then entered the room. One of them, the boy said, pressed a revolver against his head and commanded him to write a letter to his father. After this episode, according to the boy's story, he was treated kindly.

John Bozzuffi, the boy's father, said that the kidnapping was part of a plot to ruin him by causing a run on his bank. A run started on the day after the kidnapping, and up to 11 o'clock yesterday $7,000 had been drawn out of the bank.

Two Sicilians were arrested yesterday in connection with the kidnapping of Bozzuffi. Detectives found the suspects at Sixty-third street and First avenue and took them to police headquarters, where they named themselves as Joseph Constanza, 39 years old, of 330 East Sixty-third street, and Antonio Gismo, 38 years old, of 407 East Antonio street. Samuel Hickman, the landlord of the house where Antonio was held captive, identified Gismo as the man who accompanied the Italian when he went to rent the rooms where Antonio was afterwards confined. Constanza was arrested simply because he was in Gismo's company.

The kidnapped boy could not be sure of the identity of each of them, but is almost too nervous a condition to be certain of anything. He said, however, that they might be two of the men who captured him, but it was hard for him to tell, as his captors had worn masks almost constantly while they had him in their charge.

After the two suspects had been examined down stairs in police headquarters they were taken up stairs to be photographed. When it came Gismo's turn to take his place in the photographer's chair, he acted like a madman. Above his chair, which is screwed to the floor, is a great electric arc light by which the photograph is taken. When they put Gismo in the chair and turned on the electricity he evidently thought that he was to be put to death or tortured, for he jumped up from the chair and fell writhing to the floor, crying, "Don't kill me! Save me save me!" It was sometime before the detectives could quiet him to lead him away. The men were afterwards arraigned in court and held in $1,000 bail for examination on Friday.

Stocking Social

The truly pious young women of the Second Methodist Church of Pittsburgh, Pa., will hold a "stocking social" tonight. As a success, it is expected to bulge at the calf. The church owes $800, and the "social" will be given to pay off the debt.

"Drop $5 in my stocking," is to be the keynote, the motif, of the entertainment.

This is how the entertainment was arranged. Ways and means of liquidating the church debt were being discussed, when a shapely miss suggested the "stocking social." It was necessary for her to explain. The old ladies and the thin ones were horrified, but the young girls had their way, and are now soliciting their men friends for contributions.

It goes without saying that when they began their collections the stockings were limp, empty—the young women carry them, they do not wear them—there will be nothing in them but money when the "social" ends.

Never were more attractive, inviting collection bags.

At the—at the—top, so to speak—at the opening—so to say—where the money goes—do you understand?—there is not the usual, accustomed—ah—girldie—centure—retaining strap. Instead, as each earnest church-worker holds out the stocking in her hand, she extends the draws ring of pretty baby-blue ribbon that binds the—receptacle—or whatever you please to call it.

Next Thursday evening the stockings will be opened and the contents placed on the collection plate.

The best safeguard against headaches, constipation and liver troubles is Dr. Williams' Little Early Risers. They don't gripe. Sold by W. F. Crighton & Co., 401 King street.

Train Struck Powder Wagon.

A Lehigh Valley express train between New York and Buffalo struck a wagon of the Dupont Company loaded with powder at Warrior Run near Wilkes-Barre, Pa., yesterday afternoon, and by a most fortunate circumstance the powder burned instead of exploding, and the accident had no more serious result than the burning of Engineer H. W. Seals and Fireman Harry Reichard, of Easton, the charring of the engine and express car, and the destruction of the wagon. Had the powder exploded the train would have been blown to pieces. The wagon stuck in the mud with the rear wheels on the track. Knowing the train was due, the driver unhitched his horses and sped up the track to flag it. He was not in time, but Engineer Seals, seeing the wagon, stuck to his post and managed to slow the train down to about twelve miles an hour as it collided. He expected to be blown sky-high, but instead of exploding the powder, the collision hurled the tin cans containing it in wild confusion, and the engine was enveloped in a powder cloud, which the fire under the boiler ignited. There was a big flash, a gust of black smoke, and the danger was over. The engineer and fireman were burned about the hands and face, but insisted upon running the train into Wilkes-Barre. The engine and the express car were charred, but the passengers, aside from a slight shaking up by the application of the air brakes, were uninjured.

"Sleeping Sickness."

Prof. Robert Koch, of Berlin, lecturing yesterday on the "sleeping sickness" which he investigated for several months in equatorial Africa during the year 1905. Emperor William and a distinguished company were present.

The malady, said the professor, had been known on the west coast of Africa since the beginning of the last century, and it had spread to the north shore of the Victoria Nyanza and threatened German Africa. Probably 200,000 persons had died from the disease. He had found whole villages on the shores of Victoria Nyanza to be empty, and the population of some groups of islands had died to the last soul.

The infection was carried from human to human by the sting of a fly, the glossina palpalis, somewhat larger than an ordinary fly. The person affected suffered ill health for several days, and then was attacked with fever, became incoherent, the glands were swollen, the patient became emaciated, and eventually was seized with the sleep mania. Prof. Koch knew of no remedy for this disease, but hoped the extermination of the insect, which propagated slowly, by burning the undergrowth at its favorite home.

Starving to Death.

Because her stomach was so weakened by useless drugging that she could not eat, Mrs. Mary H. Walters, of St. Clair St., Columbus, O., was literally starving to death. She writes: "My stomach was so weak from useless drugs that I could not eat, and my nerves so wrecked that I could not sleep; and not before I was given up to die was I induced to try Electric Bitter, with the wonderful result that improvement began at once, and a complete cure followed." Best health tonic on earth, 10c. Guaranteed by E. S. Leadbeater & Sons, druggists.

For an Impaired Appetite.

Loss of appetite always results from faulty digestion. All that is needed is a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will invigorate the stomach, strengthen the digestion and give you an appetite like a wolf. These Tablets also act as a gentle laxative. For sale by Gibson & Timberman and W. F. Crighton & Co.
